THE HISTORY OF THE WARING HOUSE

One of Prince Edward County's best known historic buildings, this fine old stone house has stood sentinel at Waring's Corners since about 1860. Built for Thomas Waring, son of Irish immigrant Joshua Waring, the house was home to the Waring mercantile and farming family for over 100 years. Amelia's Garden Dining Room is named after Amelia Waring, a descendant of the original owners.

Oral tradition names the stonemason for the house to be one Hugh Smith (1822-1897), a native of Portaferry, County Down, Ireland, a man whose descendants still reside in Prince Edward County.

The home remained in the Waring family until 1968; five generations of farming and family life, spanning the reign of Queen Victoria, Confederation, two World Wars, and all the changes seen in farming methodology and economy during those times.

In 1981, the Waring House was transformed into a popular restaurant. In 1995 it had yet another rejuvenation. As a country inn, whose décor recalls the era of its construction, The Waring House carries on a tradition of warm hospitality the original owners would have appreciated.

In 1997, The House Next Door became part of the inn, adding twelve guest rooms to the four housed in the main building. In 1998, the Barley Room Pub was expanded and a new kitchen was built. The year 2000 saw the addition of a Cookery School and a vineyard. In 2001, a hands-on kitchen was built for the Cookery School as well as a conference/banquet hall. 2002 saw the restoration of the lovely little Vineyard View Cottage. In 2006 a greenhouse was added to facilitate the art of the professional horticulturist who has transformed the gardens.

All of us at The Waring House wish you "Bon Appétit". The menu at the inn always features locally produced foods whenever they are in season in celebration of the wonderful agricultural heritage of Prince Edward County. Our extensive wine list is proud to celebrate the wines of Prince Edward County, Ontario VQA, and wines from around the world. We sincerely hope you enjoy your visit to The Waring House and your dining experience in Amelia's Garden and that you will return again and again.
